ROCKY THE RACCOON

Once upon a time there was a little raccoon called Rocky. Rocky had a small car just like him and his car had a very small horn. Rocky loved his car.

Whenever he wanted, he got in his car and drove around. His horn's sound "Biiip...Biiip..." could be heard everywhere. This sound was really fun for Rocky.

One day, little Rocky the Raccoon got in his car again and started to drive around a big street. There was a small hospital at the corner of the street. Small sick animals stayed there.

Rocky who was passing in front of the hospital wanted to honk. He started honking quickly. The sound of his horn was all over the street. "Beep... Beep... Beep... Beep..."

The patients who heard the sound of the horn suddenly woke up. They all started crying. The sounds of little animals crying were heard all over the hospital. It even reached the street from the window.

Because his door was closed, Rocky didn't hear anything. But Rocky's little car heard the cries. He understood that the patients were disturbed by the sound of horn. He was embarrassed.
