THE BEETLE BUS

Once upon a time there was a bus called Beetle. Beetle liked to drive around very much. But Beetle had a concern.

Its driver, Ribbity Rabbit was very reckless. He didn't like driving slowly. That was why he was driving it so fast. He would step on the gas and turn the wheel quickly left and right.

When Ribbity was driving like this, Beetle Bus' head would spin around and the poor bus would get very tired.

One of those days, the little Beeble Bus and his driver Ribbity Rabbit were waiting at the bus-stop for passengers. The driver Ribbity was shouting and looking around:

"Hop on, hop on, this bus is taking off! Green forest passengers, we're taking off!"

Hearing this announcement, little Earl the squirrel, auntie chicken with her chicks, old goat Goaty and Pumpum the turtle got into the little bus one by one.

Pumpum the turtle slowly sat
on the seat right behind Ribbity. He put on his glasses
and started to
read the book
in his hand.
